New site needed

Only 'young and healthy' should come Wednesday to pick up commodities

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
USDA commodities including cheese, butter, flour, honey and rice will be distributed Wednesday at the American Legion in Waveland.
However, since people may have to wait outside in lines for a couple of hours, only the "young and healthy" should come to pick up the commodities, according to Hancock County Welfare Director Wallace Bradley.

Elderly persons who may not be able to withstand the heat while waiting in line should send someone else to pick up their commodities.

At the last commodity distribution in May, a Mobile Medic ambulance had to be called to assist persons who passed out in the heat.
The temperature this week is expected to be significantly higher than two months ago.
Bradley said welfare office personnel will go to the distribution center earlier and more workers will be on hand to try and expedite the distribution.
No other preparations are being planned to keep participants from having to wait hours in the sun.

Bradley said he honestly could not think of anything else to do.
Legion Commander Edgar Sauls said Friday, the executive committee had voted against allowing those waiting for commodities to come inside the building.
There have been many problems with litter and destruction of Legion property without allowing the people to come inside, he added.
Sauls also said there have been many complaints from area merchants due to problems during the commodity distribution.

The executive board has already requested that a new site be found for the distribution, he added.
"When the distribution began here at the Legion hall, it was only supposed to be a temporary measure," he said.
Sauls said the welfare office has been unable to find another suitable site.

Commodity distribution scheduled Wednesday

USDA commodities—cheese, butter, flour, honey and rice—will be distributed Wednesday at American Legion Post 77 on Coleman Avenue in Waveland from 9:30 a.m. until all commodities are distributed.
The weight of each bag is 21 pounds. Persons who cannot carry this weight should make their own arrangements for assistance, according to the Hancock County Welfare Department program coordinator.

All food stamps households are eligible and will receive their vouchers with their stamps. Any low income household may apply for the commodities at the welfare department.

Participants should bring their signed vouchers with them in order to receive commodities. If a person wishes to have someone else pick up their commodities they must sign the front and back of the voucher and add the name of the person who is to pick up the commodities.

Prisoners go to work starting county farm

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Sheriff's Department has begun a county work farm in Kiln to save on prisoner feeding costs.

According to Hancock County Jail Warden Jim Odom, the farm is located off Highway 43 behind the county's central maintenance barn and west of the Beat Four Community Center and Ballpark.

Deputy Leo Ladner has been placed in charge of the facility, where labor is being supplied by Cuban detainees and other prisoners.

Another deputy, A.J. Cuevas, has volunteered to provide disking.

"We have two crews of six who alternate during the day, but we hope to have 10 to 15 working here by Christmas," Odom explained.

He said the prisoners have cleared part of the eight to 10 acres to be used for the farm and are planning a winter garden.

"Right now what we need is used lumber, old buildings we can tear down and salvage and that sort of thing that we can use for sheds and barns. We need fence materials and old farm equipment if anybody has some of that they can donate," the warden added.

He said he eventually hopes to include livestock as part of the farm operation, which is designed only to reduce jail kitchen costs and not to compete with local farmers.

Odom explained that he expects the farm "to save a great deal of money in the jail kitchen" and to perhaps benefit senior citizens from time to time when the farm provides more food than can be used.

The land was purchased on a unanimous vote of the board of supervisors at the same time the farm site was acquired last year, but Odom said the idea has been around for "four or five years."

Sheriff Ronald Peterson said the operation is being modeled on a similar, but much larger, farm that has helped Harrison County Sheriff's Department reduce its costs.

"The farm just about provides a full-time job for these prisoners, and we think it's going to work out fine," Peterson said.

"The public will probably like the idea. I've found that the public likes to see the prisoners work."

Future plans may include a catfish pond that prisoners can construct next to the ballpark if such an addition is found to be feasible, the sheriff added.

"We're trying to make the whole jail operation as economically self-sufficient as possible, and we believe this farm will take us a long way toward that goal," Odom added.

More than 200 marijuana plants seized after Hancock investigator's operation

A surveillance operation led by Investigator Glen Strong of the Hancock County Sheriff's Office resulted in a raid on a marijuana factory in St. Tammany Parish, La. late Wednesday night.

Information that a Mississippian was cultivating and processing marijuana for distribution in St. Tammany Parish and the Mississippi Gulf Coast area led to the issuance of a search warrant for a building at Donya and Hermina Streets in Slidell, La.

"Based on information gathered here through surveillance, St. Tammany officers uncovered a hothouse with more than 200 live six-foot tall marijuana plants and approximately three pounds of processed marijuana," Strong said.

"The house was set up in three different sections, a hothouse or growing room, a drying room with high-intensity growing lamps, and a bagging and processing room."

"During the course of the search, additional facts were gathered which led to a second search warrant issued for the residence next door, where about 200 lbs of processed marijuana were recovered," he said. "Altogether, more than 100 pounds of marijuana were confiscated."

There were no people in the buildings when officers searched them, said Lt. Clark Thomas of the St. Tammany Parish Sheriff's Office.

Three arrest warrants have been issued, including at least one Mississippi, Thomas said.

"We are not releasing their names until the arrests are made," he said.

Birthday party for Friendship Oak to celebrate mystique of the tree

By EDGAR PEREZ
Music, food and fireworks will highlight a festive evening of celebration Saturday, Aug. 1, honoring the Mississippi Gulf Coast's most famous tree.
The occasion is the 500th birthday, by legend, of the mystical Friendship Oak on the Gulf Park campus of the University of Southern Mississippi.

"We will be celebrating the mystique of Friendship Oak as much as its size and age that Saturday evening," said Bill Johnson of Mississippi Power Company, the penta-centennial celebration committee chairman.

The penta-centennial celebration will take place in the shadows of the tree that has been said to link in friendship forever those who meet under its massive branches on the campus of US-90 in east Long Beach.

Festivities will begin at 5:30 p.m. and will conclude with a fireworks show over the Mississippi Sound at 9 p.m.

Music will be provided by the Biloxi Municipal Band, the Reester Drum and Bugle Corps and the Star-dusters. Coast restaurants will man food booths for the celebration.

A formal program begins at 8:15 p.m. to be followed by the fireworks. This program will include recognition of the Gulf Park Alumni Association, whose reunion will coincide with the event.

Students of Gulf Park College, once an exclusive, all-girls school, gathered for classes under the tree's massive limbs which also supported swings and served as magical friendship preserver.

"Those who enter my shadow will remain friends through all their lifetime," reads a plaque donated by the Gulf Park class of 1969.

But long before that, the Friendship Oak was bestowed with unusual abilities, and even today, people deliberately walk up the steps near its trunk and sit on the large platform to cement friendships.

The gigantic live oak, once a centerfold for Life magazine, has been the subject of local and national curiosity.

It has survived at least 40 hurricanes, including Camille in 1969, that uprooted much younger trees. It has been the scene of weddings, day-dreams and whispered romances.

"Just about everybody who is a native of the Coast or who has been here for awhile has a story to tell about the Friendship Oak," says Johnson.

"We want this to be truly a Coastwide celebration," he said, adding, "oak trees are so much a part of the natural beauty and character of this area, it's appropriate that we

Jones declines contract as Bay band director

BY DENA BISNETTE
Bay St. Louis band director Lana Kay Jones, who was reinstated last month by the Bay-Waveland School Board after a two-part nonreemployment appeal hearing, has decided not to return to work in the school district.

Jones resigned by not signing the contract she was offered for the 1987-88 school year.

Jones and her attorney, John Deakle of Hattiesburg, had taken the board to federal court in New Orleans in an effort to keep the board members from acting as hearing officers after she received a notice of nonreemployment in April.

Although she has a master's degree in music education from University of Southern Mississippi and has more than a decade of experience as a band director, Jones had been with the Bay-Waveland district for only two years.

Her request for a temporary restraining order that would have replaced the board as hearing officers was denied by Judge Lansing Mitchell and she appealed the decision to the board.

After a two-part hearing in which testimony centered on two incidents, both involving alleged behavior problems during band performances.

One incident allegedly occurred during the 1987 Krewe of Triton Mardi Gras parade and the other allegedly occurred during a Veteran's Day event the previous year.

Jones was reinstated by a vote of four board members, with the remaining member, Charles Benvenuti, excusing himself from voting.

"I have decided that I can not function as an effective teacher in

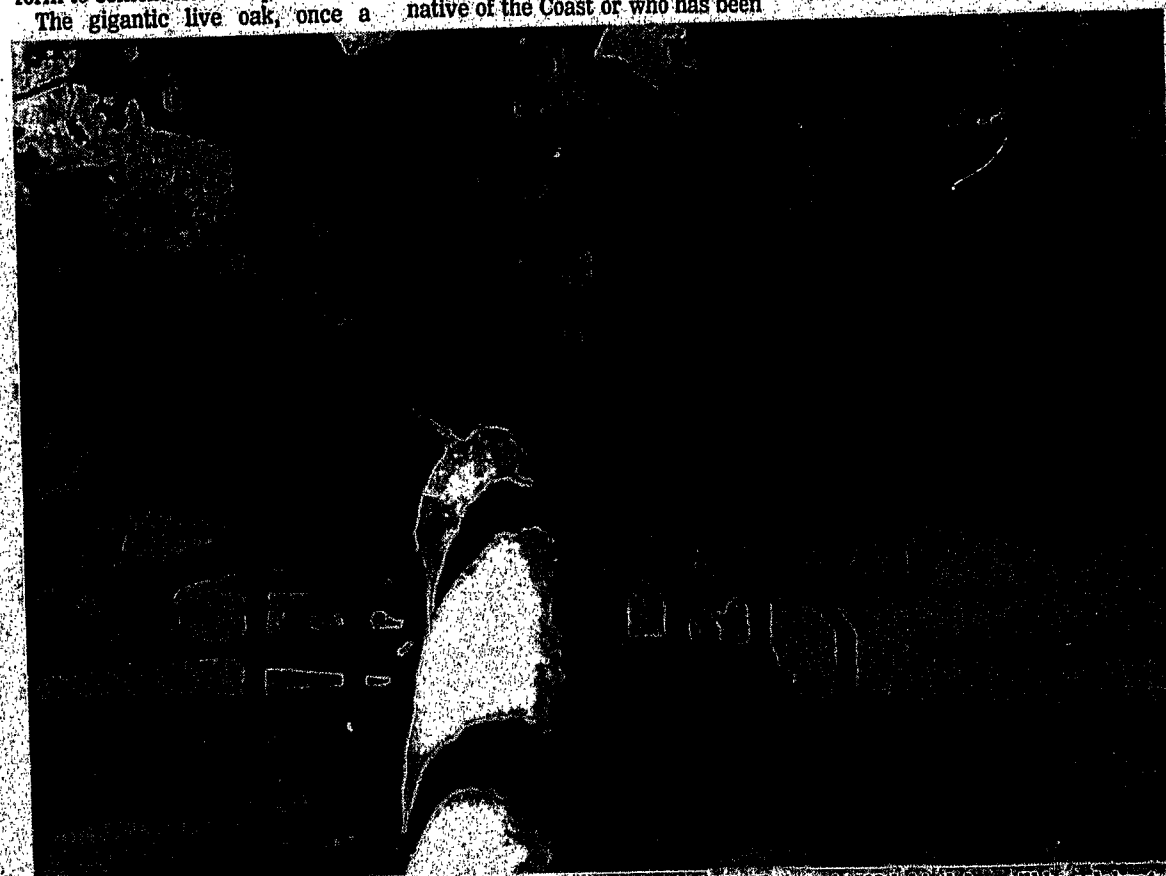

One killed in accident

One person was killed Saturday morning on Interstate 10 in a one-car accident.

Hancock County Medical Examiner Harold Stiglet said an autopsy had been conducted but no information was available on the victim due to difficulty in locating the next of kin.

The accident occurred approximately 8 a.m. on the interstate near the Louisiana line.

There was no identification of the victim who was driving a 1980 Oldsmobile Cutlass.

FRIENDSHIP OAK, located on the campus of the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast Regional Campus in Long Beach, is believed to have had its beginning in 1487. The tree's 500th birthday will be celebrated on Aug. 1, 1987.

Bay-Waveland School Board adopts $9,371,071 budget

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board has adopted a $9,371,071 1987-88 budget with no objections from the public.

According to Superintendent of Education Roger Oge, the district conducted two public hearings before the board approved the budget July 13, two days before the July 15 deadline for its submission to the State Department of Education.

According to the district's business manager, Garland Cuevas, the budget includes a $3.4 million bond issue for expansion and renovation at all four of the Bay St. Louis-Waveland Schools.

Cuevas said anticipated revenues for the coming year are broken down into several categories, including $1,771,370 from local sources that includes $1,359,844 in general revenues, $247,177 in special revenues, $153,589 for debt service and $550 in trust funds.

Also included is $2,572,582 in state sources divided into $191,553 for general purposes and $2,381,029 in special revenues that must be used for specific purposes under state or federal regulations.

Federal funds all fall under the special revenue category and total

About $2,485 derived from 16th section monies is deposited in trust funds for fiduciary purposes.

In addition, the district expects to have $9,497,359 from other sources that will be divided into $153,133 for general purposes, $121,583 in special revenue, $3,282,586 for capital projects and $3,250 in fiduciary funds.

Also included is $587,476 in fund equity.

Expenditures are broken down into seven categories, with support services broken into several smaller designations.

Instruction is the largest category, with $3,182,553 divided into $909,797 for general purposes, $2,281,006 in special funds and $1,750 for fiduciary purposes.

Support services includes totals of $153,771 for students, $339,537 for instructional staff, $236,199 for general administration, $358,088 for school administration, $97,149 for business office, $53,354 for operation and maintenance of plants, $2,250 for transportation and $502,205 for the district's central office.

$2,250 is allocated for noninstructional services and all falls under the special revenues category.

A $1,000 trust fund has been set up for income from 16th section lands.

The $3,485,686 bond issue for school renovation and expansion is included in the expenditures and is listed under capital projects.

$157,974 is set aside for debt service and $117,552 is set aside for other financing uses. Adding $313,764 in fund equity, the anticipated expenditures total $9,594,235.

In addition to adopting the budget, the board agreed to ask the City of Bay St. Louis to cover an ad valorem tax shortfall for the 1986-87 school year.

The shortfall totals $36,037 in funds collected by the city, which was expected to provide the district with $1,459,355 in ad valorem tax revenue, Superintendent of Education Roger Oge said.

Actual collections were $1,373,318. The superintendent said the shortfall was not the result of overspending by the school district but had probably occurred through a combination of causes including late collections.

The board agreed to ask for a two year note to cover the shortfall.

According to school board attorney Lucien Gex, new legislation will allow the district to levy the ad valorem tax itself rather than the city. However, the city will continue to function as the collection agency.

Candidates spend quite a bit of money in having signs and posters made and it is really illegal to remove them if they are properly placed.

There are only two weeks and a couple days before the Primaries on August 4.

We do feel that after an election, and a possible subsequent runoff, are completed, all candidates should see that their signs and posters are then removed.

Complaints are numerous after elections when the signs are still visible.

Everyone is still talking about how quiet the campaign is in our area as well as statewide. It is the quietest election we can recall.

Electorals will probably express themselves at the polls on election day, and it is hoped there will be a large turnout.

The number of political rallies have also taken a sharp drop.

It seems fewer and fewer people have been attending rallies over the past few elections.

Times have changed and so have politics.

The deadline for renewal of memberships for ambulance service is fast closing.

July 31 is the deadline to renew and the cost this year is the same as it has been for several years, only more service will be offered.

A person in our area signing up with Mobile Medic Ambulance will also receive service over a six-county area.

A few weeks ago Mobile Medic and Amserv signed an agreement were a person belonging to either service could receive ambulance service from one membership.

This covered the area of Hancock County and West Harrison served by Mobile Medic and East Harrison and Jackson County served by Amserv.

The two coastal services now have entered into an agreement with AAA Ambulance Co. which provides ambulance service for Pearl River, Lamar and Forrest County.

Now a person living in either of the six counties with a membership in either of the three ambulance services is covered in a six-county area.

A $39 membership covers all household members, including dependents under age 21 who live at home.

By the time you read this column, my renewal check will be in the mail.

A membership form is printed elsewhere in this issue of The Sea Coast Echo.

Hancock Republicans endorse Col. North

Whereas, the Hancock County Republican Executive Committee is composed of loyal, freedom-loving, patriotic citizens of Mississippi, and

Whereas, the members of this small committee stand firm in our support for a strong America, and

Whereas, Colonel Oliver North has demonstrated, through personal action in Viet Nam, duty with the National Security Council, sacrifice of his personal life with his wife and family, commitment to preventing this hemisphere from becoming a communist stronghold, and in his exemplary and superlative testimony before the Congressional Committee now in session, that he is willing to shoulder the burden for thousands of his fellow Americans, and for this nation, and

Whereas, as members of this committee, Hancock Countians, Mississippians and Americans we are genuinely grateful to Colonel North for his courage, his honesty, his integrity, and his loyalty to this nation,

Now Therefore Be It Further Resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to the press, to Colonel North, to President Reagan, and to the proper authorities of the Con-

This year's other bicentennial

By Dr. Robert Hill
Marietta College, Ohio
Most people know that 1987 is the bicentennial of the drafting and signing of the Constitution. What they don't realize is that this year is also the 200th anniversary of the Northwest Ordinance. The Ordinance provided for republican government in the Northwest Territory—which encompassed what is now Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and eastern Minnesota.

MARIETTA, OHIO—I write these words in my study overlooking the Muskingum River, a few hundred yards above its confluence with the Ohio. The trees along the bank keep from sight, this time of year, the towers of the town—church and college and courthouse—across the river.

In the park just upstream stands a sculpture called "The Start Westward" by Gutson Borglum, the creator of Mount Rushmore.

Borglum's pioneers disembark. Settlers embarked from Marietta, Ohio in April of 1788, beginning the colonization of the Northwest Territory of the United States—the vast domain stretching out from the Ohio to the Mississippi, encompassing Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and eastern Minnesota.

Marietta's bicentennial celebration is starting soon, and the community knows it is an occasion of more than local importance.

The year of celebration will commence this month with a parade and worship services, an ice-cream social and an academic symposium. The most important ceremonies occur on July 13, and justly so: July 13 marks the 200th anniversary of the event that made the existence of Marietta possible. Two hundred years ago on that date the Congress of the old Confederation enacted the Northwest Ordinance.

Though not often referred to today, the Northwest Ordinance of 1787 is an impressive historical landmark nonetheless.

The Ordinance ensured that settlers moving into the Territory would find law and order already established; it guaranteed that when a sufficient number of them had arrived they would be entitled to a good measure of self-government. The Ordinance promised to create new states that would frame constitutions for themselves and enter the federal union on an equal footing with the original ones.

The Ordinance also acted as a sort of bill of rights. It shielded freedom of conscience and secured property rights; it guaranteed such essential liberties as jury trial and habeas corpus; it encouraged education and prohibited slavery in the Territory forever. In short, the Ordinance opened the Northwest region to settlement and stamped it with a special character; and it set the pattern of territorial development as the nation extended itself to the Pacific.

It is not too much to say that the spirit that animates the Constitution of 1787 also animates the Northwest Ordinance.

Both the Constitution and the Ordinance were drafted to cope with the crisis of the union. The Constitution gave the government of the United States the power it needed if the union of the states were not to disintegrate. And the Ordinance fortified national authority in a very down-to-earth way. By giving government to the Northwest Territory, the Ordinance made the land within the Territory marketable—and hence a source of revenue for the empty federal treasury.

Moreover, both the Constitution and the Ordinance were concerned with the preservation and improvement of republican government—what might be called representative democracy, directed at securing liberty through law. By 1787 it seemed to the most sober of Americans that unjust majorities in state legislatures were perverting republicanism and thereby provoking an anti-republican reaction. They sought in the new Constitution (in Madison's words) "a republican remedy for the diseases most incident to republican government."

As for the Northwest Ordinance, its grand object is declared to be "extending the fundamental principles of...liberty which form the basis whereon...republics are erected;" and so it intends "to fix and establish those principles as the basis of all laws, constitutions, and governments, which forever hereafter shall be formed in the...territory..."

Nowadays we tend to think of "fundamental principles" as somewhat vague aspirations or abstractions. But that is not the way the Northwest ordinance treated them. Principles of liberty are generators of liberty, and to serve as a basis for republicanism they must be concrete. They include those ways of acting and thinking and feeling that support republican government.

Take just one of those principles as expressed in the Ordinance: "Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged." Much could be said about this celebrated maxim.

For example, what about school prayer? But for now I will simply note a simple thought at its core: Majority injustice, the disgrace and danger of republican government, is avoided to the extent that the majority of the people are well-instructed enough to recognize and self-controlled enough to respect the rights of the rest of the people.

The Ordinance's method of preserving and improving republican government differed from the Constitution's. Its task was creating new societies, so it paid more direct attention to planting and nurturing the habits and opinions that are the seed of flourishing republics. In that way it complemented the Constitution—or perhaps even completed it. And for that reason the Northwest Ordinance, and its wisdom, should not be overlooked in this bicentennial year.

ASK OCHSNER

Q: I'd like some information on the best type of sunglasses to buy for someone who spends a lot of time outdoors. T.E., Natchitoches, La.

A: According to Dr. Tim Johnson, an ophthalmologist at Ochsner Clinic of Baton Rouge, most people tend to select sunglasses by the style and how good they look while wearing them. And while style and comfort are important factors in selecting sunglasses, Dr. Johnson says, how well the glasses protect the eyes from ultraviolet (UV) rays of the sun should be of utmost importance.

Sunglasses which protect the eyes do not necessarily have to be expensive. You should be able to find sunglasses which are safe and are priced within your budget.

Reports have shown that sunlight exposure to the eyes can be linked to the development of cataracts, eye cancer and blurred vision. Although Dr. Johnson says no definite conclusion about these dangers has been made, these studies give reason enough to protect the eyes from UV rays.

Most sunglasses today must come with a label on them stating the amount of UV light the sunglasses filter. If this is not present, test the sunglasses for distortion by looking through the glasses at a straight line.

If the line becomes squiggly or distorted, the lenses are of poor quality. This means the UV rays are being refracted into the eye. This test only works for non-prescription glasses, however.

Dr. Johnson recommends the following types of sunglasses: CR39 plastic glasses with UV absorbing substances called polymers, polycarbonate plastic with UV absorbing films, and polarized glasses. Usually these descriptions can be found on the glasses.

The polarized glasses are recommended as they greatly reduce the reflective light from the ground, such as sand, snow and water and are, therefore, good for wearing all year-round.

All types of glasses should be tinted gray, because gray distorts natural colors the least. It's also easier to see traffic-light colors with gray lenses.

Older Americans Act wins Senate Subcommittee approval

The Senate Subcommittee on Aging has approved reauthorization of the Older Americans Act, after first including my amendment to give states more flexibility in administering the program.

During hearings our subcommittee conducted on reauthorizing the Older Americans Act, citizens told us that greater flexibility at the local level would help meet the varying needs of particular areas. I think we've given that flexibility through my amendment and in doing so improve the ability of area aging agencies to meet the needs of the elderly.

I am the ranking Republican member of the Subcommittee on Aging, and I proposed allowing states to use funds now designated for legal services for the elderly to be used to provide other essential programs for senior citizens. My amendment specifies that the flexibility would be allowed only after state and local officials determined that adequate legal services are already available through the Legal Services Corporation or private attorneys.

The Older Americans Act provides federal assistance to programs for the elderly including housing, nutrition, transportation, counseling and the more intensive home health and social services provided to the frail elderly.

I commended the subcommittee for including a provision that would require that a majority of the members of the federal Council on Aging be older Americans.

Certainly those who are the users and beneficiaries of these programs ought to have a strong voice in what's to be offered and how it should be administered.

The bill as written by the subcommittee now goes to the Labor and Human Resources Committee for consideration.

Atom oxygen problem challenges Space Station engineers

DENVER, Colo.— The National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Space Station, scheduled to be in orbit by the mid-1990s, must remain operational in space for up to 30 years. This requirement is presenting unique challenges for engineers working on the project.

One of the toughest problems they face is what to do about atomic oxygen, the scattered oxygen particles that exist in orbit, 200 to 500 miles from Earth.

Atomic oxygen, produced when oxygen molecules are broken down by the sun's rays in space, is highly corrosive and has caused damage to satellites in orbit.

Although atomic oxygen particles are relatively stationary in space, their corrosive action is greatly intensified when they collide with orbiting space vehicles moving at 18,000 miles per hour.

To help solve the atomic oxygen problem, engineers at Martin Marietta Astronautics Group in Denver have developed an Atomic Oxygen Simulation System for NASA to analyze atomic oxygen damage and to identify the most resistant materials available.

The work was done in conjunction with Colutron Research Corp. of Boulder, Colo.

The simulator, built under a $450,000 contract, will be delivered to the NASA Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala. this month.

Martin Marietta engineers built a prototype atomic oxygen simulator at the company's Denver facilities in 1986.

Scientists learned of the severe effects of atomic oxygen during postflight inspection of Space Shuttles. They found, for example, that atomic oxygen had eaten into the insulating blankets used to protect television cameras in the Shuttle payload bay.

The blankets lost 30 percent of their thickness during missions lasting only five days. After 15 days, these insulating blankets might have disintegrated.

So the Space Station, expected to be in orbit for decades, will require special coatings, materials, and even special lubricants to safeguard against deterioration caused by atomic oxygen.

"NASA's simulator will be a national facility for evaluation of the long-term effects of atomic oxygen on space vehicles," says Lyle Bareiss, atomic oxygen program manager at Martin Marietta. "It will be used to select materials in the design of the space Station to ensure a long lifetime at minimum expense."

The atomic oxygen simulator is a high-energy particle accelerator. In the simulator, oxygen molecules are bombarded with electrons to break them down into oxygen atoms. These atoms are then accelerated in the simulator to a velocity of 400,000 miles-per-hour by a 3,000-volt electrical field to focus the atomic oxygen into a half-inch-diameter beam. Unwanted atoms are filtered out by magnetic force.

Particles in the atomic oxygen beam are then slowed back down by a second electrical field to about 18,000 miles-per-hour, to simulate Space Station orbital conditions.

Next, the atomic oxygen beam is directed against various materials in a test chamber where instruments measure damage to the materials, allowing engineers to select the best possible materials for construction of the Space Station.

Martin Marietta also heads a team of companies working on the design and development of parts of the Space Station, including the habitation and laboratory modules, where astronauts will live and work, and the environmental control and life support systems.

Companies bidding for contracts to build various parts of the Space Station will submit their proposals to NASA by the end of July.

NASA is expected to select companies to build the Space Station by the end of 1987.

Russians to visit MPC's power plant

A group of Russians from the Soviet Ministry of Coal will visit Mississippi Power Company's Plant Jack Watson Tuesday to inspect some of the utility's coal handling equipment.

Five Soviet officials and their Japanese interpreters are coming to the electric generating plant in Gulfport to look particularly at the utility's giant Letourneau coal dozer, one of the largest tractors in the world. Mississippi Power Company uses the 43-foot long dozer to move massive amounts of coal at the plant.

"The trip is being sponsored by the Marathon Letourneau Company, manufacturers of the tractor, in hopes of interesting the Russians in purchasing some of their equipment," Craig Leasure, plant manager said. "We have had many tour groups at the plant over the years, but this will be the first time the Soviet government has paid us a visit."

The group of Russians work in Siberia where they are responsible for overseeing the country's coal supply.

Mississippi Power Company generates more than 90 percent of its electricity from coal and more than 1.2 million tons of coal are burned each year at Plant Watson.

The coal dozer weighs more than 214,000 pounds and its 24-foot wide blade is more than 9 feet tall and can push 65 cubic yards of coal at once. The 12 cylinder engine has 1,200 horsepower and the dozer can carry 500 gallons of fuel. An onboard computer controls the machine and each of the four, seven-foot high tires are powered by 150 horsepower electric motors.

ASK VOLUNTEER FIREMEN ABOUT RURAL FIRE DISTRICTS

When it comes to facing up to cold facts, the going can get pretty rough. But there's one legislator who stands tall on the floor of the legislature and fights for her constituents.

When she found out rural homeowners were finding it impossible to buy fire insurance, she began working on a plan to establish Legal Fire Districts in those communities.

Thanks to her efforts, rural homeowners are organizing fire protection districts across the state and solving their insurance problems. That's what commitment is all about. That's what Wootsie Tate's all about.

On Health Insurance

Health insurance is one of the most important purchases a family makes. Health care has increased at more than twice the overall rate of inflation, and the typical family cannot cover these costs without some assistance.

A good health insurance program covers hospital, surgical, and medical expenses. Disability income insurance will replace a portion of income lost because of illness or accident.

Below are some guidelines for planning your health insurance program:

1. Be sure your coverage fits your needs. Consider a high-benefit major medical policy and protection against loss of income.
2. The policy should offer broad coverage rather than protection against specific illnesses, such as cancer.
3. Know exactly what expenses are not covered by your insurance.
4. Avoid duplicate coverage. Look closely at group plans offered by your employer. If both spouses are employed, select the best, most cost-effective coverage for both.
5. Is the policy guaranteed, non-cancellable and renewable? With this provision the company must renew the policy and can raise the premiums only on the renewal date. With a policy that is optionally renewable, the company can refuse to renew the policy every few years. Make sure you have coverage for your family's current situation as well as today's costs of health care.
6. For your free copy of a publication that discusses the various types of health insurance policies and policy features to look for, call 338-4710.

Friendship Oak

celebrate a tree.
"And anyone who has ever been embraced by the branches of the Friendship Oak can testify to the aura and charisma of that experience."

Though the tree's plaque carries the date 1487, no one knows the oak's correct birthday. The date is believed to be the result of a long-ago core sampling, but for fear of injury to the tree, no new sample will be taken for verification.

Recently, arborists have given a range of 350 to 700 years, with 500 the most likely.

So on Aug. 1, Mississippians will celebrate the real or imagined birth date of a tree that has seen the Coast change from a wilderness with Indian camps to an urban area of more than 200,000 people.

The birthday fair will be set up around the tree on the east side of Hardy Hall.

The formal program will include cake-cutting and an old-fashioned patriotic sing.

Funding for the event is supported through the sale of a commemorative poster by Long Beach artist Elizabeth Veglia, which is on sale at the USM-Gulf Park Bookstore for $10 a print, or $25 for a signed print.

Statistically, like many other living things during the past 50 years, Friendship Oak has become a little thinner at the top and a little more broad at the bottom.

Current measurements show a 50-foot height; diameter of trunk 5 feet, four inches; circumference of the trunk 17 feet, spread of foliage, 151 feet.

The average length of the main lateral limbs is 60-66 feet from the trunk; average circumference of limbs at trunk is 7 1/2 feet; the tree forms almost 16,000 feet of shelter and lateral roots go out 150 feet.

A sapling when Christopher Columbus sailed into the Caribbean four centuries ago, Friendship Oak shrugged off the fury of Hurricane Elena in 1985 as if she had seen it all before.

And, indeed she had.

The massive, sprawling live-oak tree stood, unbending and unbowed, through the Labor Day storm that rocked the Mississippi Gulf Coast and caused widespread property damage.

"It looked only as if it had just been pruned a little," observed a post-hurricane visitor to the Gulf Park campus where the tree stands next to Hardy Hall.

The old campus suffered tree damage and windows were broken in a number of buildings as the Sept. 2 storm plowed through the area.

Classes were cancelled until Monday, Sept. 9, as a result of the damage and electrical power outages.

But Friendship Oak, which was bearing acorns as Ponce de Leon reached Florida in quest of the legendary fountain of youth, weathered the storm virtually unscathed.

After all, she had survived the 200-plus-mile-an-hour winds and 25-foot tides of Hurricane Camille 16 years earlier and had withstood Hurricane Frederick, of equal size to Elena, in 1979.

When the pirate, Captain Kidd, was hanged in London in 1701 for his American buccannering, Friendship Oak was more than 200 years old. The well-developed oak, with strong branches extending in every direction, saw many a pirate ship in the coastal area, where Lafitte and Blackbeard dropped anchor in their time.

Platforms and staircases built into the lower limbs of the tree provided an outdoor lecture room for Vachal Lindsay, who held classes there in English literature and poetry.

No matter how hard and steady a downpour occurs during rainy seasons, the 60-foot lateral limbs and dense foliage of the tree always provide dry space underneath.

Life Magazine on Oct. 16, 1950, in devoting five pages to a color picture story of Gulf Park, published a two-page picture of this enormous oak with the entire student body of the former all-girls college posted beneath its branches, and showing the platform built into the tree.

The late Bob Davis, former world correspondent for the New York Sun, described the tree in his book, "People, People, Everywhere." He said of the historic oak:

"You should have a title.

"I am called Friendship Oak. Those who enter my shadow will remain friends through all their lifetimes, no matter where fate may take them in after years."

In addition to Johnson, other celebration committee members are Barbara Salaun of WLOX-TV, Biloxi; Lloyd Gray, editor of The Sun-Herald; Rebecca Kremer of the Hancock Bank public relations office, Gulfport; and Bud Kirkpatrick, director of public information for USM, Hattiesburg.

CAST AND CREW for "Summertime on the Beach," a Waveland Players' variety show scheduled for Friday and Saturday evenings, July 24 and 25, assemble on stage for a sing-along finale. Curtain time is 8 p.m. both nights at Waveland Civic Center. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children as well as one non-perishable food item per person to benefit the Hancock County Food Pantry. The variety show will feature songs, dances and comedy skits with a summertime theme and is directed by Barbara Jo Fitch. (Staff photo by Dena Blonette)

Bicentennial edition issued on Constitutional explanations

VIENNA, Va. — A Louisiana attorney and scholar has released a bicentennial edition of a book which explains in detail every Amendment, Article, Clause and Section of the U.S. Constitution.

Taylor W. O'Hearn, a former Louisiana State legislator and author of four other books, is author of 'The Constitution of The United States with Explanations'.

Originally written in 1976 and revised in 1987, the work digests the Preamble and every section of the Constitution in readable, understandable, every-day language.

The 115-page paperback book includes nine illustrations, a 19-page topical index, and a brief "Historical Overview" of the events leading to the writing and signing of the Constitution.

The book reprints every word of the Constitution, beginning with the Preamble, the seven Articles (with each Section and Clause) and the 28 Amendments, and follows each provision with a brief explanation of what the wording means. The author also includes the leading cases that apply to each provision.

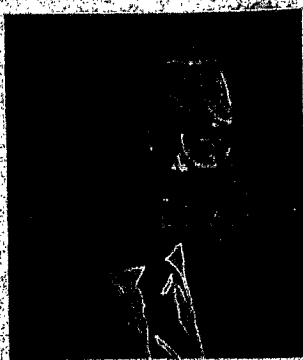

'The Constitution With Explanations' has been distributed by the Epcot Center in Disney World and by independent bookstores and drug store chains throughout the country. It may soon be available from Walden Books.

The Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution has included the book in its 'Project Registry,' of useful resource material on the Bicentennial.

The book has been endorsed by the Women for Constitutional Government, Constitutional historian Stanley Katz, local chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Eagle Forum and numerous educators throughout the country.

Single copies of 'The Constitution of the U.S. With Explanations' are available for $4.95 plus $1 for shipping and handling. A 40 percent discount applies for orders of 100 books or more. Books can be ordered from A.P.H. Publishers, P.O. Box 87, Shreveport, La. 71161 or by calling 818/424-1519.

Comedy series on city Government to air on PRM

A new radio comedy series, "Visit New Grinston, Anyway," begins on Public Radio in Mississippi (PRM) at 6 p.m., Sunday, July 26.

The 13-part series centers on the efforts and experiences of a young man, Neil Hoffman, newly employed in city government. It is a warm funny look at the way a city is really run.

The scene of the action is New Grinston, also known as "Vinyl City," a major manufacturer of auto seat upholstery. New Grinston is home to the kinds of people and situations of ten encountered at City Hall, from indecipherable red tape to political seams and endless bureaucracy.

As the series progresses, Neil must deal with two warring street gangs, the Plum Street Pings and the Warren Street Whizzes; a European low-budget film director comes to New Grinston to use the city's offices as a movie location; and Neil is given an award of dubious distinction, "Bureaucrat of the Month."

PRM, a division of Mississippi ETV, can be tuned on FM frequency 90.3 Biloxi.

Guidry-Ritch

Paulette Lorene Ritch became the bride of Eloi Anthony (Tony) Guidry in an afternoon ceremony June 20 at First Assembly of God Church in Waveland. The Reverend Edmond James of Harvest Time Church in Pass Christian officiated.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold D. Ritch of Bay St. Louis. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Guidry Sr., also of Bay St. Louis.

Nuptial music was presented by pianist Mrs. Candi James of Pass Christian.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of organza over bridal taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a deep flounce of chantilly lace bordering the portrait neckline. The waistline was sashed in organza and gave way to a cathedral train. She carried a bouquet of blue silk flowers interspersed with white satin ribbons and lace. Dawna Ruth Pursley of Bay St.

Louis was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Donna Stacey Gustine and Peggy Joy Crawford, and Crystal Denise Ritch, sister of the bride, all of Bay St. Louis; and Denise Dorothy DeGeorge of Waveland.

The attendants were attired in formal gowns of blue satin with full, puffed sleeves. They carried a blue long stemmed rose with satin streamers.

David Malley of Kiln was best man.

Groomsmen were Steve McQueen, Jacob Dupree, and Robert Guidry Jr., brother of the groom, all of Bay St. Louis; and Blain Thomas of Kiln. Ushers were Randall Ray Ritch of Bay St. Louis and Russell W. Snyder of Scottsboro, Ala., brothers of the bride.

Walter Cure V of Violet, La., was ring bearer.

Brennan-Stieffel

Christ Episcopal Church in Bay St. Louis was the setting for the June 20 afternoon marriage of Merle Bennett Stieffel and Lawrence Michael Brennan.

Rev. Nick Johnson officiated. The bride was escorted to the altar by her sons, Herb Stieffel and Clayton Stieffel.

The bride was attired in a tea-length gown of candlelight Belgium lace with scalloped edged tunic, over a gathered lace skirt fitted to the knee. The large lace collar was closed with pearl buttons, as were the wrist-length lace sleeves. Her headpiece was a picture hat of candlelight lace and satin, edged with seed pearls and swept up to a bouffant tulle bow in the back. She carried a cascade of beige dogwood and light peach orchids.

Kimberly Holloman, Rochelle Goodick and Jade Caldwell served as attendants to their mother. They wore identical tea-length dresses in Edwardian fashion, each in a soft blue flowered print. The yoke featured a large white lace collar. The skirt was extremely straight with kick pleats.

They carried arm bouquets of white and light blue dogwood with eight peach orchids with ribbons. Picture hats completed their attire. Serving as best man to her father was William "Buzzy" Brennan of New Orleans.

Ushers were Randall Goodick and Jeffrey Brennan.

Participating in the services was Ms. Lori Brommer who read from Genesis and Ephesians. Mrs. Edith Wilhelm presented nuptial music.

A dinner reception with a Southern setting immediately followed at the home of the bride assisted by Randall Goodick, Robert Goodick, Alfred Holloman, and children of the bride.

For their honeymoon, the couple cruised the islands in and around Florida on their sailing vessel.

Product Safety Update

U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission
Office of Information and Public Affairs
Washington, D.C. 20207
Tel: 301-492-8580

Parents warned

31 children die since 1982 playing 'garage door game'

Citing 31 deaths since 1982 to children under 12 years of age caused by automatic garage doors, safety experts are again warning parents to prohibit children from playing games with garage door openers.

Reconstructing the accident scenario, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission said children activate the garage door opener, then run out of the garage in an effort to beat the door before it closes.

Deaths occur when the descending door strikes the child and pins him or her to the ground. Even garage doors equipped with an automatic reverse mechanism have been involved in fatalities.

CPSC urged parents to keep remote control devices locked in the accessory compartment of the car to prevent access by children. Wall-mounted switches which activate garage doors should be moved far out of reach by young children.

Homeowners should also check the owner's manual for instructions on checking the automatic reverse feature on the doors. CPSC said homeowners may want to adjust the opener's sensitivity switch so that the door reverses under the least possible pressure.

ASK OCHSNER

Q. I have heard that there is a new surgical procedure to permanently correct nearsightedness. Is this operation safe and could you give me some information on it? C.R., Natchez, Ms.

A. According to Dr. Tim Johnson, an ophthalmologist at Ochsner Clinic of Baton Rouge, nearsightedness (also called myopia) results from the eye being too long from front to back. Less often, the condition occurs when the focusing power of the cornea of the lens is too great. As a result, images of distant objects are blurred and nearby objects are seen clearly. Nearsightedness affects millions of people in this country and for most is easily corrected with glasses or contact lenses.

A new surgical procedure called radial keratotomy may be another option in treating nearsightedness in the future. Radial keratotomy is an experimental operation which was first developed in the Soviet Union. It involves making a series of cuts, arranged like spokes of a wheel, in the cornea, flattening its curvature. Radial keratotomy has been shown to reduce nearsightedness in some cases, but Dr. Johnson says it may not be enough to make glasses unnecessary. There have been reported cases where there has been a decrease in the ability to see clearly after having the operation. In some cases vision has been "overcorrected" making the eye nearsighted person farsighted. Other reported problems have included unstable vision after surgery, making the person farsighted and nearsighted at different times of the day and problems with extreme glare after the surgery.

So far, only a few ophthalmologic surgeons are experienced in this operation. Because the outcome of the procedure and more importantly, the long-term effects of the procedure are still unknown, The American Academy of Ophthalmology still classifies the operation as an "investigative procedure." Dr. Johnson says most ophthalmologic surgeons trained in the procedure will perform radial keratotomy only under controlled conditions on patients who cannot tolerate glasses or contact lenses and who are evaluated under a strict protocol.

Dr. Johnson says it's entirely possible that in ten years more will be known about the outcome of the procedure itself will be perfected so as to become an alternative in correcting the nearsightedness. Until then, however, he cautions anyone considering the procedure to thoroughly discuss the pros and cons with an ophthalmologist who is experienced in this operation. For the time being, glasses and contact lenses are your safest bet, he says.

Phillips graduation scheduled

Phillips Junior College will hold its 1987 graduation ceremony Friday, July 24 at 7 p.m. in the Saenger Theater in Biloxi.

Dennis Dollar, director, and Sue Hargrove, academic dean, will present degrees and diplomas to 110 candidates for graduation.

Trent Lott, Fifth District congressman to the U.S. House of Representatives, will deliver the commencement address.

All alumni, family and friends of the graduating class are invited, as well as the general public.

Ask Ochsner answers medical questions of general interest. We DID YOU KNOW?

Since 1983, a non-profit, educational organization has been holding lectures, seminars and other programs to address problems of our society.

As the group CAUSA USA sees it, these programs include: the decline of religious values; increasing immorality and the spread of atheistic communism.

Its activities are based on a God-centered philosophy which is ecumenical in its appeal.

It's committed to upholding such fundamental values as: belief in God; each human being is a child of God; the individual's right to freedom; and selfless love as the highest virtue.

In addition to its educational programs the group collects and distributes food to the needy and tries to beautify blighted areas.

Anyone interested in learning more about CAUSA USA and helping further its ends can write for free brochures or send tax-deductible donations to CAUSA USA, Dept. 100, One Penn Plaza, Suite 100, New York, N.Y. 10119.
